REMEMBER back in the days of television news, when you could see an anchor's face on the screen, but not his body? Well, I remember that too. I remember the excitement of the night, the excitement of the night, the excitement of the night... when you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news...

...and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news...

...and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news...

...and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news, and when it was over, you were watching the news...
